

Become a Corporate Member of the Vertical Flight Society!

We promote technical advancements and commercialization, peer review of research, educational workshops, as well as furthering professional training.

We award highly competitive scholarships to the next generation of vertical flight engineers, scientists and leaders.

Our conferences, meetings and publications are vital in disseminating scientific, engineering and operational knowledge.

We provide much-needed professional development through short courses, local chapter meetings and technical conferences.

We advocate for the vertical flight community to government leaders, businesses, the public and the media.

The Society and its chapters create and promote STEM activities at middle schools, high schools and universities.

Our meetings provide a dynamic forum for quality interaction between industry leaders, the technical workforce and future engineers.

We promote member engagement with senior leaders in industry, academia and government agencies.

We engage undergraduate and graduate students in challenging vertical flight learning activities, thus facilitating the talent pipeline.
